Elbow Tap to All My Patients

Message from Dan ...

You will no doubt be pleased to hear that from 1st July dental practices in Wales intend to progress to a 'high amber' phase. This means we will be able to offer urgent dental care to our patients in addition to our emergency service and on-line consultations. Full details will be explained on our website nearer the time. To safeguard patients and staff, treatments will be restricted, but I can assure you that the care you receive will be of our usual high standard. Our patients have been truly missed by the team so we look forward to seeing you either for an on-line or in-surgery assessment soon.

Safety First

Your next visit to the practice will be a very different experience to your last, but behind the protective headgear and screens you will see our familiar friendly faces. Having your temperature taken and being handed a mask on arrival may seem daunting at first but adapting to change is something we are all getting better at. The stringent procedures we have put in place are designed to protect everyone and by embracing these changes together we will safeguard our patients, our practice and our community.

Keep Smiling

Does a Smile-Make-over feature on your list of things to treat yourself to after lockdown?

Invisalign treatments are one of the practice's most popular adult orthodontic procedures because the aligners are clear, the procedure is non-invasive and thanks to our latest digital imaging technology, we don't even need to take impressions. To find out more about how we can improve your smile with Invisalign, book an on-line consultation with our Invisalign Provider, Dr. Debbie Hughes via our website.

Save trees, time and taking risks

We have created a Patient Portal where you can safely access your personal and medical information remotely, reducing the risk of cross-contamination during your next visit. You will soon receive a request from us to update your portal so keep an eye on your inbox.
